This meeting will be held at the Lake Opechee Inn and Spa, located at 62 Doris Ray Court, Lakeport, NH. More specifically, our event will be held in the Winnisquam Room.

Do you like surprises? We hope so! After the fall quarterly business meeting, the after dinner presentation will remain a mystery. After all, you don't stay for the dinner and the presentation for the CEUs, right? We hope you stay for the great company of your fellow surveyor and the entertainment. Please join us as we all learn together what we're in for. For those of you who don't like surprises, or can't stand the anticipation, check the website—maybe an update will be there!

A Case Studies seminar will also be offered at Lake Opechee Inn and Spa on the day of the quarterly business meeting to provide an opportunity for those of you that have set aside the entire day to attend both. You may attend just the seminar, just the quarterly business meeting, dinner and speaker, or stay for all three.

Why not take advantage of spending time in the Lakes Region. The sales and operation manager has offered us a special on overnight rooms for Thursday and Friday. The Sylvan Rooms that look over the back of the grounds will be available for $169, and the Lake View Rooms will be available for $209. This will offer you and your guest(s) a $60 savings off their regular room rates.

NOTE: To save on printing costs, both meeting & seminar registration forms are included together, but you can detach them and submit either one or both.

Seminar Description

There will be four cases presented.

Cases & Speakers

Case 1—Is Justice Blind or Does She See 20/20? Along with input from Mark Stevens, this case will be presented by David Mann and Dennis McKenney. David will focus on Primary Evidence; Law of Evidence; Conclusive Evidence; Burden of Proof; Written Intention of the Parties; Interpretation of Terms; Action/Inaction of Parties; Extrinsic Evidence; Rules for Interpretation of Writings; and the Role of the Surveyor. Dennis will address the following questions: Should the order of importance of conflicting title elements matter to surveyors, to the judge?; Shouldn't the boundary surveys of adjoining tracts substantially agree on boundary lines and record evidence?; Is justice blind?; Lastly, Was the profession of surveying given its proper due and respect in my case before the Cheshire County Superior Court?

David is a Licensed Land Surveyor in New Hampshire and Vermont. He is a Past-President of NHLSA and a Chairman of the History Committee. David is also the editor of VLS Cornerpost and a perpetual student of the history of New Hampshire and Vermont. Dennis spends most of his working time in the retracement of boundary lines or dealing with timber and trees as I have now for 30+ years. When I'm not doing these ostensibly for profit activities, I spend a lot of time fixing the things my wife tells me are broke and splitting firewood for heat and hot water in the coming winter. Once in awhile I drag out a 'harp' and jump on stage with a blues band because its cheaper than an hour with a mental health therapist and way more fun.

Case 2—Bad Planning. This case will be presented by Wayne McCutcheon. "I have been involved with the land surveying profession for five decades and it has been a rewarding experience. It is the kind of occupation that makes you feel that there are few other things that you had rather be doing. All practitioners that offer their services to the public are subject to constructive criticism occasionally, but when my business partner was unfairly chastised in his absence at a public planning board meeting by members of the board, I decided that it was time to take legal action."

When Wayne's not doing his thing out in the field, or the office, he and his wife, Jean, can be found tandem paddling their recently restored 18' Old Town guide canoe, or sitting by a classic automobile, in a field at a car show, or attending a barbecue, soccer, basketball, or track event, proudly cheering on their grandsons.

Case 3—Rangeways in New Hampshire. Hank Amsden presents our third case. In 1764, the Hanover Proprietors clearly articulated what became a 'give title/receive easement' municipal policy, legislatively confirmed for rangeway exchanges in 1766 and 1791. From 1813 to present, a search of NH Supreme Court activity revealed only 3 cases specifically mentioning rangeway use and ownership, one of which was tangentially cited by the court in 2009. Although the legality of the practice was judicially noticed in 1834 (COPP v. NEAL), no subsequent case seems to address the specific question of title, suggesting judicious legislative mitigation. The 3 cases will be briefly reviewed with mention of recent legal and municipal activity, showing the subtle quagmires implied. A recent compendium on the subject, THE RANGEWAYS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, by two authors from Salisbury will also be introduced and utilized in this preliminary introduction to a 200+ year old surveyor's brain teaser.

Having 3 score and 10 (+!) is OK, but Hank still hasn't mastered CARLSON 2004, despite data collectors but likes to eat out occasionally. Practicing in Weare some years ago, inevitably involved the RANGEWAY issue (Weare is a clearcut, straightforward rangeway town). About 1990 the NHLSA asked him to present a short review of rangeway principles. Since that time, a large corpus of documents and hidden issues regarding this rather unique colonial phenomenon have emerged. What is presented today should be considered as no more than seminal. Other voices from sites throughout the state should enter the lists on the subject and get us all up to speed. There may be rumblings in the legislature on the rangeway subject and the Association should be informed and ready when that time comes.

Case 4—Cutting Traverse Lines or Timber Trespass?

This case presented by F. Webster Stout involves a survey he performed in Lyman, NH for a court case on the difference between a survey and the area call on a deed. Along with his company, he was sued for "timber trespass" for the cutting of trees for the traverse line.

Web has been in Surveying for 31 years. He attended the Thompson School of Applied Science at UNH. His first surveying job was in Rifle, Colorado where he was the only employee of "Shale County Surveying" performing both field and office duties. He returned to NH and worked for 3 surveying companies before starting his own business in 1994. His interests and hobbies include hunting, fishing, boating, and the ocean.
